Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

- SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought

FIRE WEATHER

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA:

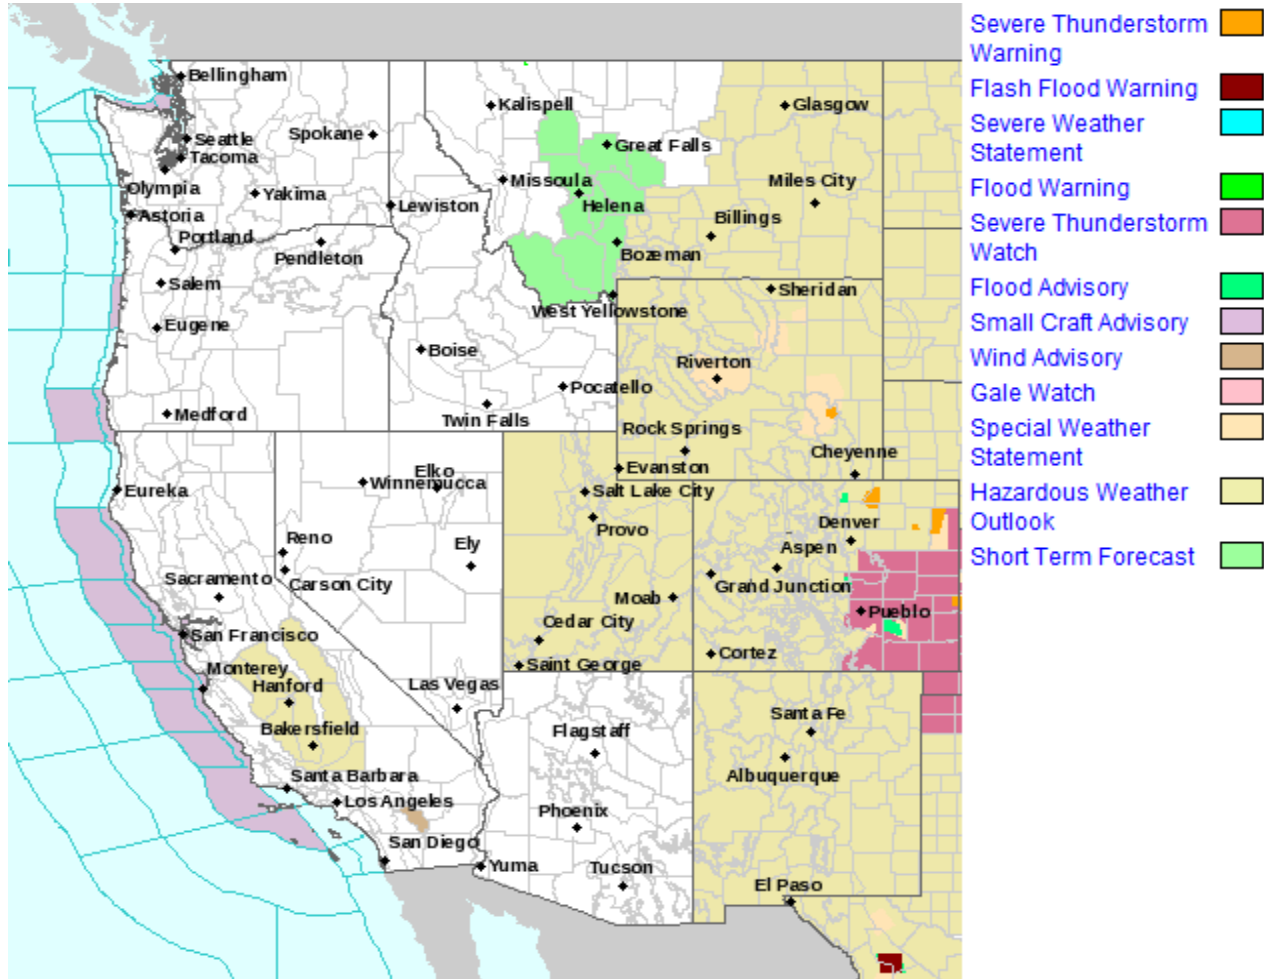

Not much change is expected in the weather through Tuesday, although a series of small, weak weather systems will pass through the region on a persisting westerly flow. Periods of cloudiness are the most likely effect of these systems, but some light showers might develop over the Northwest mountains Monday night from one such system. A weather pattern change will develop Wednesday as a stronger system approaches from off shore. Some light rain is expected to fall over the northern and mountain areas of Northern California beginning Wednesday night and lasting into early Saturday. The best rain chances will be in the northern quarter of the Geographic Area. Isolated wet thunderstorms will be possible through that period as well. Although confidence remains relatively low in the forecasted timing and strength of these events, it is looking more probable that some rainfall will occur at the end of the week. The warmest inland valleys will continue to have afternoon highs in the 90s into Tuesday. Beginning Wednesday highs will only reach into the 80s and stay that way until at least Friday. Periods of moderately strong, gusty westerly afternoon winds can be expected this week. Areas of coastal low clouds and morning fog will continue to be somewhat patchy.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

A weak Pacific trough over the West Coast will bring near normal temperatures to the region through Tuesday, with mid 70s to mid 80s in the mountains and mid 80s to mid 90s in the valleys. Minimum humidity will be in the single digits and teens above the marine layer, which has deepened to around 2,000 feet. Westerly afternoon and evening winds of 15 to 25 mph with gusts to 40 mph will surface across the Antelope Valley and Banning Pass through Tuesday. The trough will deepen bringing below normal temperatures and higher humidity to the region Wednesday through the end of this week. The marine layer will deepen, with morning low clouds and fog moving over the lower coastal mountain slopes. Westerly winds will increase to 20 to 40 mph with gusts to 60 mph over the wind prone areas Wednesday afternoon through Friday afternoon.

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

Situational Summary

On January 17, 2014 Governor Edmund G. Brown proclaimed a State of Emergency and directed state officials to take all necessary actions to prepare for drought conditions. The State Operation Center (SOC) is activated to implement objectives in support of the Governor's priorities. The lack of winter rain and snowfall has resulted in extremely dry conditions in many parts of the State. Reservoir levels are down significantly from where they should be on average for this time of year. If conditions continue without substantial rainfall, severe impacts to municipal water supplies, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities are likely in store for the State over the next few months. Negative economic impacts will also result.

*As our state's rainy season comes to an end, it is highly unlikely that precipitation totals will increase significantly. This winter's below average rain and snowfall worsens conditions in this third straight dry year.

The drought could result in severe impacts to the municipal water supplies, wells, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities for several months. The SOC continues to be activated to monitor the situation statewide, and support regional and local operational areas.

- The Taskforce continues to meet regularly to take actions that conserve water and coordinate state response to the drought.
- The final manual snowpack survey of the season was conducted on Thursday (May 1) and showed California snowpack at 18% of normal.
- DWR has announced that water essential for health and safety will be delivered through the state water project. The current State Water Project Allocation is 5%.
- Cal OES continues to gather drought-related costs from state agencies and local governments.
